The man who owns the magic, flying pie is Mr McMuck, the owner of the local magic café. He has deep brown hair and eyes, but very pale skin. Everything in his café had something weird about it, and his clothing was similar. He wore a dark green cloak and purple clothes. The flying pie was his first culinary miscreation. One day, someone was seriously injured by a flamingfish pizza, and the café was closed. He went mad and waged a genocidal food fight against humanity. He was captured and sent to prison, but the flying pie was never captured.

Long ago there lived a woman, name of Miss Parker von Winkle. She owned a chocolate factory. One day they decided to try something. They wanted to try something new and unusual. They had some pastry and lots of chocolate. So they baked a chocolate pie. In an unfortunate even a mysterious chemical was added ti the mixture. It brought the very sugary pie to life. It grew a propeller and decided it wanted to escape.

Arnold Jackson works as a referee. He loves his whistle so much that he keeps it in a cage and treats it like pet. The whistle hates the cage so much that it makes a noise to get out.

The person who owns this spoon is an old lady. She is called Mrs Jackson. She is very friendly and kind. The reason that she owns this object is she always loses her buttons and puts them on a spoon.

Mrs Seawood. Old maid, sweeps small cottage. Her husband was a sailor and he died at sea. She cleaned Harewood house. The ship on top is because of him. She is slightly overweight, always tired. Bags under her eyes. Small – not tall. Reading glasses hang off the end of her nose. Shoulder length hair – blonde but grey roots. In memory. After he died she retired and gave up her dream of being the head maid in Harewood.
